To: All Faculty From: call with the student and/ or accompanying the student to the appropriate office are often helpful interventions. If a student talks about self-injury, then calling the Counseling Center (x3500) for advice is indicated. In the case of an emergency, call Public Safety at x3636 (the emergency line).

You could ask the student to voluntarily sign a release of information at the Counseling Center so that you can be informed about whether the student has kept an appointment. Without a release, the Center staff is unable to communicate with anyone about whether the student has been seen. Counseling Center records are subject to the DC Mental Health Information Act which has strict provisions about patient confidentiality.

Taking to the student about the behaviors and asking that they stop are good first steps. If the behaviors continue, consulting with the Student Conduct and Conflict Resolution Services office (x3328) about whether the behaviors violate the Student Conduct Code is appropriate. If the udent to leave the class, after which a Student Conduct appropriate appropriate appropriate appropriate of a student where behaviors in a student conduct appropriate of a student where behaviors in a student conduct appropriate.

after which a Student Conduct complaint can be filed. In the case of a student whose behavior is threatening or violent, Public Safety should be called immediately at x3636 (the emergency line).

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 both prohibit discrimination against individuals with disabilities, including psychological disabilities. Students can provide documentation of a disability to the Disability Support Services office staff who determine reasonable accommodations based on the documentation. The nature of the questions or concerns about a letter of accommodations provided by a student can contact the Academic Support and Access Center (ASAC) at x3360. If the student does not request accommodations, then there is no notification to faculty by the ASAC.
